

The COVID-19 pandemic has been interesting. Life was very different during the pandemic. Lots of families lost their jobs, lost loved ones and much more. I personally didn't lose anyone close to me but I did almost lose my dad. He got very sick. It was a tough time for us and putting that made it the worst. I can't go into detail but like many families it was a very scary and stressful time. During the beginning of the pandemic everything was on lockdown. No going out for unnecessary reasons. Sitting inside all day doing nothing was the worst. Some might think that staying inside playing video games all day would be fun or doing other things you would find fun but doing that everyday for months is not fun. The only way to understand it is going through it. Though some people encountered worse things than I did and some people even encountered worse things without a pandemic for me personally it couldn't have been worse. I couldn't think of a life without certain people in your life. I can't understand how some feel because some people did lose their family members or other loved ones and I don't know how it feels but I am grateful for my dad and I am sorry for all those who have been lost due to COVID-19. It has been a stressful time during the pandemic but as long as we keep a strong mindset we can push through it. Stay positive and stay safe. If we just did what we were supposed to we wouldn't have had such a big pandemic but some people dont listen to what we need to do and they go and do what they want to.
