

Covid-19

When the world took a pause
we all sat and wait.
We were told just a two week break.
A two week break turned into eight.

Six Feet apart they say,
six Feet felt like Sixty.
Isolated from society
we began to think.

Covid-19 showed us value.
Value of a Human Life.
A human life is no more than a number on a sheet.
A mere statistic.

People are starving to death,
depressed people are turning to meth.
Nobody cares to help.

Masks hide the fake smiles and were all tasked with new challenges.
People are finally running out of steam.
